GEMS OF THOUGHT

The enslavement of man is not legitimate. It will cease when man enters into his heritage of freedom, his God-given dominion over the material senses.

— Mary Baker Eddy

The only freedom worth possessing is that which gives enlargement to a people's energy and virtue.

— Theodore Parker

This Is A
Silly Proposal

The socialist government of Saskatchewan has, in the past, encouraged the farmers of that province not to pay their mortgage understandings. It even went so far as to enact legislation to help them repudiate their obligations.

The legislation did not stand up; but the fiscal institutions that lent money on farm mortgages have not forgotten the attempt, or the threat of the government that it would yet find a way to accomplish its purpose.

Ever since that happened the mortgage companies have been shy of lending on the security of Saskatchewan farm lands. Even the farmers of the province who might have expected to profit by that legislation, when they reach the retirement age and would dispose of their farms, are afraid to sell, except for cash, for fear of what the government might do next.

But chickens do have a way of coming home to roost. The Saskatchewan government now has a Royal Commission studying agricultural problems; and this Commission has made a report on farm credit in the province.

The report admits that the province's farm debt legislation has had a discouraging effect on the lending of money to farmers, and it sees no prospect of inducing the mortgage companies to change their minds.

At the same time the Commission sees the need for an immense volume of new credit to enable Saskatchewan farmers to enlarge their holdings and modernize their equipment. It reports that the smallest farm unit that can be profitably operated in the province today is 460 acres, and that the lowest price at which farm land can be bought is $40 an acre—nearly $20,000 for the smallest economic farm unit. It also finds that the cost of complete modern equipment for such a farm would be, at the very least, $20,000.
Thus the commission finds that $40,000 is the smallest amount a man would require to start farming in Saskatchewan today.

There are in the province between 20,000 and 30,000 farms that are too small for profitable operation, according to the Commission's figures. The owners of all these farms need large amounts of credit to enable them to buy more land and better equipment.

In addition, the report says that there are in the province about 4,000 young men reaching maturity every year. Many of these want to start farming. Some of them were reared on farms, but very few of them have any capital of their own money for the purchase of land in Saskatchewan.

The Commission estimates that 2,500 farms become available for purchase every year through retirement or death of the owners. But no one is willing to sell, except for cash, and no one is willing to lend
Saskatchewan.

Where is the money to come from to finance all these aspiring farm owners?

The only suggestion the Commission has to offer is that the Dominion Government supply sufficient credit to all those who wish to start farming in the province, and to those farmers who believe they need more land to make their operations profitable.

The suggestion is preposterous.
How can the Dominion Government be expected to lend such enormous sums of money in the province where the risk is greatest, without doing at least as much for the farmers of other provinces that have never tried to repudiate their obligations and have never elected a government pledged to destroy private enterprise?

How in the name of all that is sensible could any Government lend the taxpayers' money in such quantities to men who have never had any experience in the handling of money or in managing farms?

It takes more than easy money to make a successful farmer. But easy money on the scale suggested by the Saskatchewan Royal Commission would be the ruin of more of that province's young men than it would help.

GUESS WHO WON?

When my nephew came home at the end of his first year at college, he would talk about nothing but the infallibility of mathematics. His father listened to this as long as he could and finally asked the boy, "Is this an accurate mathematical statement? I have one thing, and you have one thing. We exchange. Each of us still has one thing. Is that correct?"

"Well then," his father went on,
"If you have one dollar and I have one dollar, and we exchange, we each have one dollar. But if I have one idea and you have one idea, and we exchange, we each have two ideas. Right?"

His son is still trying to figure it out . . . mathematically.

LO VOLATILE 2-4-D ESTERS: Volatile or regular type of esters are hot and cause a degree of burning. They do this to a greater or lesser degree, depending on the formulation, rate of application and susceptibility of both or either crop or weeds. This burning action gives the quick kill (about 4 days) which is satisfactory for susceptible and intermediate annuals but is not so good for perennials because there is top kill but little translocation to the roots. Lo Volatile esters theoretically could lose after application up to 25% of their potential killing power through vaporization. Lo Volatile does not give the burning effect on weeds or crop and requires a longer time to accomplish a kill.
Because of this longer time there is a much greater degree of translocation. The weed lives long enough to translocate the acid to the roots and hence a more permanent kill.
Lo Volatile does not vaporize and hence, a slightly lower application rate is possible. Lo Volatile is more tolerant to crops than standard esters and will also translocate better and further into the roots and thus ensures a more permanent kill for both annual, and more particularly perennial weeds. Besides all this, there is little if any danger of drifting vapor fumes causing damage to nearby gardens, flowers, shrubs or trees. The slightly higher cost per gallon of Lo Volatile is well worth the extra expense.

BUSY AIRLINES

To the moon and back, 18,000 times — that represents the total mileage flown by the world's airlines since the Second World War.
A recent stocktaking shows that in the past 10 years trips flown would have been enough to carry the whole population of Sweden around the world, to freight all the coffee in Brazil across the South Atlantic, to fly 15 million letters each week around the globe at the equator.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

How understanding of the Ten Commandments brings freedom from fear and limitation will be brought out at Christian Science services on Sunday. Renouncing the Lesson Sermon entitled "God" is the Golden Text from Psalms (77:13): "Thy way, O God, is in the sanctuary: who is so great a God as our God?" Scriptural readings will include the following words of Moses (Deut. 6: 4, 5): "Hear, O Israel: The Lord our God is one Lord: And thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thine heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy might." Among the passages to be read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy is the following (200:4): "Moses advanced a nation to the worship of God in Spirit instead of matter, and illustrated the grand human capacities of being bestowed by immortal mind."

DISTRICT NEWS

States Won't Dump Wheat

The biggest concern in Canadian agriculture now is export markets. The attitude of the United States in disposing of its huge government-owned wheat surplus is worrying Canadian farmers. They are afraid it will be dumped, at whatever salvage price it can bring, thus knocking the bottom out of world prices.

Mr. Benson, U.S. secretary of agriculture, was thoroughly reassuring on that point in his speech in Calgary last week.

His remarks are of such importance to Canadian farmers that we herewith publish the relevant part of his speech:

"Our policies of seeking to bring production into better balance with demand and of making our price programs more realistic seem to be clearly understood. But apparently there have risen some misconceptions, not to say apprehensions, about our foreign marketing programs. Let me say, frankly and firmly, that there will be no glutting of world markets with U.S. farm surpluses."

"The Congress has embodied safeguards against glutting in the Agricultural and Trade Development and Assistance Act and other programs. Both President Eisenhower and I have given repeated assurances that these sales will have a minimum impact on normal commercial markets. That would only injure the United States as well as other countries."

"Our agricultural export policy is based on three principles: —

1. We must compete fairly on the world market.

2. We must be competitive in quality.

3. We must participate in a mutually profitable international trade that gives our customers abroad the continuous opportunity to earn foreign exchange needed to buy our products."

Our policy on wheat, for example, is to compete fairly but aggressively in the world grain market. What are the results of that policy to date?

Our wheat and flour exports for the period July through March, ran about 55 million bushels ahead of the preceding year. For the entire marketing year we will export about 250 million bushels. In only one year during the past 10 have our wheat exports been that low — this was in 1953-54, when we shipped only 217 million bushels.

If we export 250 million bushels of wheat and flour marketing year, we will ship only about three-fourths as much as our average for the 9 preceding years — and less than half as much as the peak reached in 1948-49.

Canada, on the other hand, is expected to ship 275 million bushels of wheat and flour in the current marketing year. You exceeded this total only three times in the past decade. This total — 275 million bushels — compares with an average of 268 million bushels for the preceding 9 years. We might point out, further, that some of the big Canadian exports of wheat in recent years were made possible in part by U.S. foreign assistance dollars to aid recovery in some of our customer nations.

"Let me say again: We are not engaging in any cutthroat race for markets — and we have no intention of doing so. We do feel that our fair share of the world wheat market is something more than the 250 million bushels we are exporting this year — and we expect to boost that total — always by fair means — in the years ahead."

We are — all of us — interested in basic principles of fair play. There is a real need for mutual co-operation between our two countries in the management and disposal of surpluses. Speaking for the farmers of the United States, I feel confident that much more can be done to promote such co-operative disposal than has yet been achieved. And I would point out that any basis of co-operation that can be worked out between our two nations would be helpful in furthering the spirit of co-operation among other friendly countries and achieving an increase in consumption of surplus products."

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Mrs. Lydia Suder, and Miss Walsh, of the Faculty of the College will be sailing from New York on June 29. They left Didsbury last Monday. Miss Gladys Eby accompanied them to Calgary where a number of friends gathered to bid them Bon Voyage. They will return the latter part of September.

Mr. and Mrs. Koehler, with their son and daughter, arrived in Didsbury last Friday from Indiana. They are the parents of Mrs. Lusk and have come to visit the Lusk's and return with them to Indiana on July 4th.

Mr. and Mrs. Lusk have concluded their evangelistic meeting at McDougal Flats and James River, and will be visiting friends in the community no doubt until their departure July 4. On Tuesday evening a large number of friends gathered in the College to bid them farewell and to present them with gifts. We trust that wherever they work in the future they will have much success. Mr. Lusk expects to continue his musical education and to earn his Bachelor of Music Degree in Chicago. He has at the present his Bachelor of Arts in Music.

We have received word that Mr. Widmark will not be able to return until the fall opening of school. He has been quite ill, and will need the summer to recuperate. He will be taking the Directorship of the Music Department. Mr. Widmark is well qualified to teach voice and has had considerable experience in the direction of choirs as well. There will be assistance secured in this department and students will be able to get piano as well.

Rev. and Mrs. Taylor passed through on Saturday on their way to Galahad where they will hold special services for this week. This is Mr. Taylor's home and he always has a warm reception from the people of that community.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Eby returned from their Ontario trip last week. Since returning Mrs. Eby has had to be hospitalized. She was ill for the greater part of the time while gone. They accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Tr. Stauffer.

Camp Meeting will begin on July 7. This is always a time when people come together from the many churches throughout the Province. The people of this community are cordially invited to attend. Conference will open in the United Missionary Church on Monday, July 4. Rev. Harley Traub, District Superintendent will be the speaker.

On Monday evening the young's People's Class of the United Missionary Church met in the College to honor a Bride-elect, Miss Marion Eby. The traditional cup and saucer was presented to her as a member of the class. Miss Gladys Eby is the teacher of this fine class of young people that now numbers about 25.
